THE DEGENERATES JOURNAL

THE FINAL HOUR · THE FADE CAME FOR THE CHIPS · BASIC EDITION

Tuesday, November 24, 2026 · South Florida

Engine List PANW, AVGO, MSFT, CSCO, AAPL, APH, ANET

DEGEN RISK 98/100 · RISK-OFF · this morning's reading

As filed in this morning's Basic - basis: November 23 equity and credit closes, live volatility at 05:05 ET.

The Dow reclaims 50,000 as the fade comes for the chips

Monday's rally met its first test: the chips failed it, and the rest of the market passed.

"Cut short your losses, and let your profits run on."

— David Ricardo

HEADLINES

- Dow +0.85% to 50,018.70 — back above 50,000.
- S&P 500 -0.50% to 7,201.09; Nasdaq -1.48%.
- Consumer confidence 103.3 — highest since Jan 2025.
- Dell doubles revenue after the close; the year raised.

ES FUTURES	NQ FUTURES	YM FUTURES
7,206.75	26,246.25	50,006.00
-47.75 (-0.66%)	-561.75 (-2.10%)	+329.00 (+0.66%)

For research and education purposes only. Nothing here is a recommendation to buy or sell any security.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.

© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

1 — THE DAILY QUESTION, ANSWERED

“Does Tuesday fade Monday's snap-back — futures lower, Nvidia down about 3.9% and Dell down about 5% in the premarket — or does the reinstatement bid hold the S&P above Monday's session low of 7,152.66 into Dell's print tonight and Wednesday's PCE stack?”

INTO THE CLOSE — The fade came — for the names that made Monday. Nvidia, up about 8.6% in Monday's premarket and 31.48% on the day, closed Tuesday down 5.86% at $155.38; Dell, the question's second named test into its print tonight, fell 11.83% in the regular session before its release. The S&P 500 closed down 0.50% at 7,201.09, and the hold line the question prices — Monday's session low of 7,152.66 — did not hold on an intraday basis: the index traded to 7,138.93 before recovering to close above it. So the session answered the question's first branch, with a qualification the close itself wrote: the fade was real and it was narrow. The Dow rose 0.85% to 50,018.70 — back above 50,000 after three sessions below it — nine of eleven sector funds finished higher, and the confidence print at 103.3 said the selling was about positioning in the leaders, not about the economy underneath. Because the question grades on the session it prices and its hold leg failed intraday while its fade leg completed on the close, it grades Contradicted.

2 — THE STORY

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 423.39 points (+0.85%) on Tuesday to close at 50,018.70 — back above 50,000 after three sessions below it — on a session the S&P 500 fell 0.50% to 7,201.09 and the Nasdaq Composite fell 1.48% to 23,733.54 (CNBC closing figures). The split was the session: the Dow's thirty names, light on the chip complex that led Monday's rally, were carried by health care, staples and the day's retail winners, while the cap-weighted indexes wore the semiconductor give-back. The Russell 2000 rose 0.57% to 2,684.94. A recovery close back above 50,000 on a down day for the benchmark is the rotation in one print: money left the leaders and stayed in the market.

Source: CNBC

Tomorrow: the week's data day — core PCE, the second estimate of third-quarter GDP, durable goods, personal income and spending and jobless claims all print at 08:30 ET, new-home sales at 10:00 ET and the Federal Reserve's Beige Book at 14:00 ET; Deere reports before the open. Markets are closed Thursday for Thanksgiving and end Friday at 13:00 ET.

After the close today — Dell Technologies printed a record quarter and raised its year: revenue of $54.94 billion, up 103% on the year, against about $49.32 billion expected, non-GAAP earnings of $9.45 a share against about $6.59 expected, and full-year revenue guidance raised to $202.0 billion (the company's release). The shares rose about 4% in extended trade. Workday and Autodesk beat and fell after hours anyway; Ambarella guided its next quarter about a third under the Street and lost about 38% more in extended trade.

3 — DATA CHECK

Tuesday's data — confidence roared back to its highest since January 2025, home prices cooled at the margin, Richmond turned positive

	YEAR AGO	PRIOR	EXPECTED	PRINTED
Consumer confidence index (Nov)	—	91.9	92.4	103.3
Present Situation index (Nov)	—	119.1	—	132.8

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

Case-Shiller 20-city home prices, year over year (Sep)	—	+2.7%	+2.7%	+2.6%
Case-Shiller 20-city, month over month, adjusted (Sep)	—	+0.2%	—	+0.1%
FHFA house price index, month over month (Sep)	—	+0.2%	+0.2%	0.0%
Richmond Fed composite index (Nov)	—	-2	—	+3

The Conference Board's Consumer Confidence Index for November, reported Tuesday, November 24 at 10:00 ET: the headline at 103.3, up 11.4 points from October's upwardly revised 91.9 (first reported as 91.7 in this morning's edition); the expected column prints the 92.4 consensus this morning's edition carried (Helious), with the survey range 92.1 to 92.5 by carrier — no vendor figure is blended. The Present Situation index rose 13.7 points to 132.8, so its prior prints 119.1 by subtraction from the Board's own release figures. The S&P Cotality Case-Shiller indexes for September, reported the same morning at 09:00 ET (S&P Dow Jones Indices): the 20-city year-over-year gain at +2.6% against +2.7% expected, August at +2.7%; the seasonally adjusted monthly gain at +0.1%, August revised to +0.2%. The FHFA House Price Index for September (FHFA): unchanged on the month against +0.2% expected, August revised to +0.2%; the third-quarter index rose 2.5% on the year. The Richmond Fed composite index for November (Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond): +3 from -2 in October, with new orders, shipments and employment all higher; the expected column prints none because the morning's filed calendars disagreed on the survey (-3 in the Dow Jones poll, +2 in the Helious calendar) and the edition does not blend surveys.

DEGENERATES JOURNAL'S TAKE

Tuesday's data argued with Tuesday's tape, and the argument is the day's most useful print. The consumer the equity market has been worrying about since the selloff began is, on the Conference Board's own survey, the most confident since January 2025 — an 11.4-point jump taken across a survey window (November 1 to 17) that contains the worst of the equity slide and none of Monday's rally. Confidence at 103.3 with 30.8% of respondents describing jobs as plentiful is not a recessionary consumer, and the morning's retail reporters — Dollar Tree, Dick's, Abercrombie and Kohl's, beats and raises across the slate — filed the same reading in revenue. Housing, the rate-sensitive leg, is the cooler half of the day: prices still rising on the year, flat on the month on the FHFA measure, and rising slower than inflation — a leg cooling without cracking. The Richmond survey turning positive (+3, all three components up) adds a regional factory read pointing the same way as confidence. Why it matters: none of this prices Wednesday. The week's verdict prints at 08:30 ET tomorrow — core PCE, the Fed's own gauge, with the second GDP estimate — in front of the December 8-9 meeting, and Tuesday's data raised the bar for a dovish read of it: a strong consumer, sticky prices in the Richmond survey's own prices-paid line (up 7.59% on the year), and a housing leg that is cooling on its own. What would change the read: the PCE price index itself — the one print this week the December meeting actually prices.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

4 — WHAT CHANGED SINCE THE MORNING

MARKET	THE TURN
S&P 500 (SPY)	Futures pointed -0.30% lower at the morning stamp; the fund closed -0.49% as the chip give-back outweighed a nine-of-eleven green sector board — the fade the morning priced, at half the premarket's fear
Nasdaq-100 (QQQ)	The morning's -0.89% Nasdaq future became a -1.99% close for the fund: the semiconductor index -7.88%, Nvidia -5.86%, and Analog Devices -17.37% on a light guide
Dow (DIA)	The morning's -0.05% Dow future became a +0.79% close for the fund and a 423.39-point gain for the cash Dow to 50,018.70 — back above 50,000, carried by health care, staples and the retail winners
VIX	Priced 27.54 early, the fear gauge spiked as high as 32.38 intraday and settled at 26.36 (-0.98%) — the session's fear peaked at midday and was sold into the close

Monday's broadening rally narrowed into Tuesday's broadening rotation: nine of eleven sector funds higher and the Dow back above 50,000, against a chip complex that handed back most of Monday's surge in one session (64% of it on the SOX).

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

5 — TODAY'S STANDOUT

NVDA

Nvidia (NVDA) - the fade day: the board's top name gives back 5.86% to $155.38, and its low stops at the week's line

$155.38 -5.86%

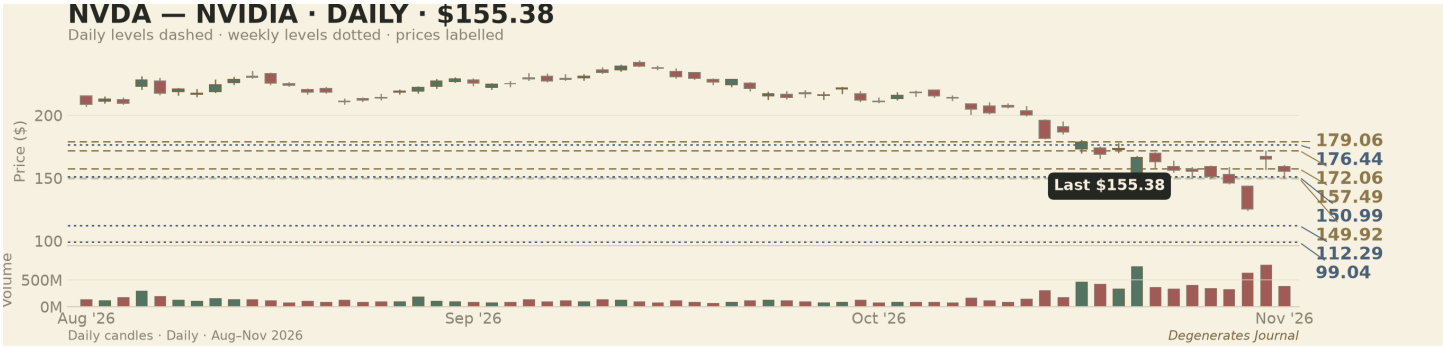

FIG. 1 — NVDA daily candlesticks, Aug 24-Nov 24, 2026, 66 sessions; daily (dashed) and weekly (dotted) Classic levels off Monday's session and the week of Nov 16, prices labelled. Data through the Tue Nov 24, 2026 close.

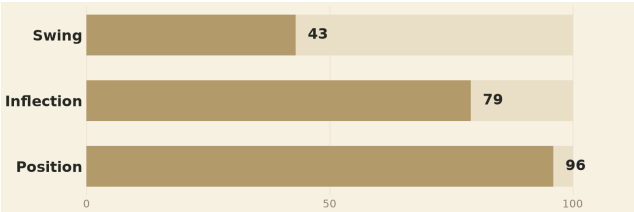
Degen Lens Alpha



Degen Meter

Score -76.7 of ±100
Label Strong Bearish

Regime Below its 200-day average · Stretch flag Washed out

Daily bars through the Tue Nov 24, 2026 close.

Lens scores are the board of record (engine 0.3), scored on the settled Tue Nov 24 session: Swing 43, Inflection 79 and Position 96 print — a trio average of 72.7, first of sixteen on the board. The LEAPS module prints 92. The board stamps the name a QUALITY-VS-TAPE divergence — the Lens's top average against a Meter still at -76.7. The chart and the Meter run through today's close.

Why Nvidia stands out Nvidia (NVDA) closed at $155.38, down $9.67 (-5.86%) — the most active name on the board and the centre of the session's chip give-back, one day after its best day since 2003. The shares opened at $159.06, traded as high as $159.92 and as low as $150.50, and settled $4.88 off the low on 382.1 million shares — about 1.48 times the recent average volume. The low is the day's most important print on the name: $150.50 stopped 58 cents above the daily second support at $149.92 off Monday's session and just under the weekly first resistance at $150.99 off the week of November 16 — the first real line under the price, tested in the session's worst hour and held into the close. On the settled board the name still ranks first of sixteen, its trio average of 72.7 untouched by the fade: the Lens grades the business and the structure, and neither changed on Tuesday. The tape grade is the one that moved.

What happened Nothing new landed on Nvidia's own file on Tuesday — no filing, no headline on the reinstatement or the regulatory examinations, which the Reuters explainer of November 24 still lists as live. What landed was a tone, set before the open by one of the complex's own: Analog Devices beat its quarter on earnings per share and revenue and guided the next one light, and fell 17.37% for it. The give-back ran down the whole chip board — the Philadelphia semiconductor index fell 7.88%, Micron fell

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

11.01%, SanDisk fell 11.13%, Marvell fell 9.10% and Intel fell 8.15% — as Monday's positioning unwind met its mirror image: a second day of one-way trading, in the opposite direction, on no new fact about the company at the centre of it. Nvidia's own premarket had already told the story at 04:46 ET, down 3.85% at $158.70 (Finnhub, as filed in this morning's research); the cash session extended it, then stopped at the level.

The bigger picture The close at $155.38 sits below the daily first support at $157.49 off Monday's session — Monday's repricing level is now the first line overhead — and the name remains down 28.71% over twenty sessions, below its 50-day average at $204.95 and its 200-day average at $203.07. The Degen Meter, run through today's close on the frozen v1 formula, reads -76.7 in the Strong Bearish band, below its 200-day average, with the Washed out flag set — identical, to the hundredth, to the meter the settled board stamps against the name's top-ranked Lens average, which is the QUALITY-VS-TAPE divergence in one number pair. Underneath the close, the lines are the weekly first resistance at $150.99 — $4.39 below, the line the low just defended — and the daily second support at $149.92 beneath it. Above, after $157.49, the daily first resistance at $172.06 and the weekly second resistance at $176.44 stand $16.68 and $21.06 overhead: Monday's high ground, not yet a target.

The business The board's record for the name is unchanged by the session: at the settled $155.38 close the shares trade about 28% below the desk's MODEL v2 base value of $215.79, on trailing revenue of $303.0 billion, up 104% on the year, at a 74.7% gross margin, with net cash of $36.0 billion and a trailing price-to-earnings multiple of 24.2 times on operating earnings of $6.43 a share (the settled board's fundamentals panel). Tuesday evening added the demand-side cross-check the fade had asked for in the morning: Dell Technologies, the AI-server name whose order book reads the same demand, printed record revenue of $54.94 billion after the close, up 103% on the year, and raised its year — its infrastructure group, which houses the servers, nearly tripled to $41.97 billion. The order books behind the AI trade did not fade on Tuesday. The multiple the market pays for them did, for one session.

How to read it Read the low, not the close. A fade that runs 5.86% and stops — to within 58 cents — at the first structural line under the price is a different event from the one-way slides of the week before, which stopped at nothing. Sellers pressed all day and were answered at $150.50; the close recovered $4.88 of the $9.42 range. That is what a level doing its job looks like, and it is also all it proves: one defence, on 1.48 times average volume, in a name whose Meter still reads Strong Bearish and whose twenty-session loss is still 28.71%. The honest limit runs both ways, as it did on Monday: a single session's defence is a hypothesis, and the sessions that follow it are the evidence.

The outlook from here On the evidence printed in this edition, the near-term lean on the name stays cautious — the same discipline the Meter and the level structure imposed through the slide and through Monday's spike, applied now to a fade. What would change the lean: a held close back above the daily first support at $157.49, then a run at the $172.06 to $176.44 resistance pair, with the Meter climbing out of the Strong Bearish band on follow-through. What would mark Tuesday's defence as a pause rather than a floor: a close under the daily second support at $149.92, which would open the weekly supports at $112.29 and leave Monday's repricing fully handed back. A description of the printed evidence, for education only - not a recommendation.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

6 — THE INDEX MOVE

SPY -0.49% · S&P 500 7,201.09 · QQQ -1.99% · DIA +0.79% · IWM +0.53% · VIX -0.98% to 26.36 at the close. Percentage changes are versus Monday's close; the S&P 500 and VIX are closing levels.

S&P 500	NASDAQ	DOW JONES
7,201.09	23,733.54	50,018.70
▼ -36.08 (-0.50%)	▼ -356.02 (-1.48%)	▲ +423.39 (+0.85%)

VIX 26.36 (-0.98%) - breadth rotated rather than broke: 9 of 11 sector funds closed higher, health care the strongest at +2.95% and technology the weakest at -3.26%; on the Engine List two of the seven names finished higher, and one of the seven — Apple — closed above its 50-day average.

▼ 10Y yield 4.90% -1.4 bp vs Monday's close — the long end sat out the equity argument again; the rate story waits for Wednesday's PCE

▼ 30Y yield 5.29% -0.2 bp vs Monday's close

▲ WTI crude $81.58 +1.76% vs Monday's close — the day's energy bid ran opposite to Monday's, with the equity risk bid going to barrels and defensives instead of chips

▼ Gold $3,554.60 -2.65% vs Monday's close — Monday's haven bid handed back as the session's fear peaked at midday and faded

▲ Bitcoin $61,211 +0.08% vs the prior completed bar (2026-11-22)

Sectors into the close: nine of the eleven sector funds finished higher — health care rose 2.95% at the front, while technology fell 3.26% at the back.

Tape as of 16:05 ET.

7 — MORNING THESIS SCORECARD

Morning edition (06:05 ET) graded against the tape at 16:05 ET

Morning statement	Evidence	Verdict
Does Tuesday fade Monday's snap-back — futures lower, Nvidia down about 3.9% and Dell down about 5% in the premarket — or does the reinstatement bid hold the S&P above Monday's session low of 7,152.66 into Dell's print tonight and Wednesday's PCE stack?	The fade printed. The S&P 500 settled at 7,201.09, down 36.08 points (-0.50%) from Monday's 7,237.17 close, and Nvidia closed at $155.38, down 5.86%. The hold leg the question prices — the S&P staying above Monday's session low of 7,152.66 — failed on an intraday basis: the index traded as low as 7,138.93 in the session before recovering to close above the line. A close back above the low softens the fade; it does not un-print it, and the question grades on the session it prices. The question grades Contradicted.	Contradicted
Morning stance — Dow futures: Middle of the swing.	Held inside the swing: Dow futures ranged 49,348 to 50,137 in the cash session — well inside the morning's weekly band, support 45,052 (week of Mar 30) and resistance 53,656 (week of Jul 6) — and finished near 50,033, as the cash Dow rose 0.85% to 50,018.70 — back above 50,000 after three sessions below it.	Confirmed

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

Morning statement	Evidence	Verdict
Morning stance — S&P futures: Middle of the swing.	Held inside the swing: S&P futures ranged 7,152.25 to 7,240.75 in the cash session — inside the morning's weekly band, support 6,353.25 (week of Mar 30) and resistance 7,632 (week of Jul 13) — and finished near 7,209.25, as the cash index fell 0.50% to 7,201.09.	Confirmed
Morning stance — Nasdaq futures: Middle of the swing.	Held inside the swing: Nasdaq futures ranged 25,998.00 to 26,509.75 in the cash session — inside the morning's weekly band, support 22,961.50 (week of Mar 30) and resistance 30,343 (week of Aug 17) — and finished near 26,235.25, as the Nasdaq Composite fell 1.48%.	Confirmed
The S&P 500 closes today above Monday's close of 7,237.17.	The S&P 500 settled Tuesday at 7,201.09, below Monday's close of 7,237.17 by 36.08 points (-0.50%).	Contradicted
Nvidia closes today above its Monday close of $165.05.	Nvidia settled Tuesday at $155.38, down $9.67 (-5.86%) from Monday's close of $165.05.	Contradicted

NOVEMBER RECORD — MONTH TO DATE

14	33	37	4
SESSIONS GRADED	CONFIRMED	CONTRADICTED	UNRESOLVED

Verdicts describe what the tape did against the morning's own words. They are not calls and not advice.

Three confirmed, three contradicted, no unresolved — the morning is graded in the open, line by line.

8 — ENGINE LIST SCORECARD

How this morning's Engine List names traded against their levels of record - the board's daily and weekly swing levels printed in this morning's Pro:

PANW	0.0% broke, 100.0% not reached.
AVGO	0.0% broke, 100.0% not reached.
MSFT	0.0% broke, 25.0% held, 75.0% not reached.
CSCO	0.0% broke, 33.3% held, 66.7% not reached.
AAPL	33.3% broke, 66.7% not reached.
APH	50.0% broke, 50.0% not reached.
ANET	25.0% broke, 75.0% not reached.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

9 — WHERE THE DAY'S MOVES CAME FROM

The day's sector funds, Tuesday's close versus Monday's:

SECTOR FUND	TODAY
Health care (XLV)	▲ +2.95%
Consumer staples (XLP)	▲ +1.66%
Real estate (XLRE)	▲ +1.31%
Energy (XLE)	▲ +0.97%
Financials (XLF)	▲ +0.83%
Communication services (XLC)	▲ +0.82%
Consumer discretionary (XLY)	▲ +0.68%
Materials (XLB)	▲ +0.54%
Utilities (XLU)	▲ +0.18%
Industrials (XLI)	▼ -0.53%
Technology (XLK)	▼ -3.26%

9 of the 11 sector funds closed higher. The board is Monday's rally turned inside out: health care +2.95%, consumer staples +1.66% and real estate +1.31% at the front — the defensive and rate-sensitive end — with financials +0.83%, communication services +0.82% and energy +0.97% behind them, and only technology (-3.26%, wearing the chip index's -7.88%) and industrials (-0.53%) lower. A down day for the S&P 500 in which nine of eleven sectors rise is a rotation print, not a liquidation print: the index fell because its largest weights fell, and the average stock in it went up.

10 — LEVELS SCOREBOARD

Across 7 names and 26 graded morning levels: 15.4% broke, 7.7% held and 76.9% were not reached. The breaks ran with the session: Apple broke the only graded line above a rising name — its $351.43 daily swing high, closing $2.64 through it — while Amphenol broke its $76.74 weekly and daily swing low and Arista broke its $176.77 daily swing low on the way down. The holds were the day's quieter story: Microsoft's $491.22 daily swing low and Cisco's $93.66 daily swing low were both touched in the fade and both held into the close, the Engine List's version of the index's own low holding at the weekly line in the standout section.

11 — BREADTH AND VOLUME

On the Engine List, two of the seven names closed higher — Apple +1.43% to $354.07, which broke its daily swing high of $351.43, and Microsoft +0.74% to $496.13, which held its daily swing low of $491.22. The other five fell with the complex: Palo Alto Networks -0.12%, Cisco -2.90% (its low held the daily swing low of $93.66), Broadcom -3.98%, Amphenol -5.09% (through its $76.74 swing low) and Arista Networks -5.47% (through its daily swing low of $176.77). Apple is the only one of the seven above its 50-day average: $354.07 against $342.58.

Regular-session index volume: SPY 1.16 times, QQQ 1.04 times, DIA 1.04 times, IWM 1.09 times their prior 30-session average — a heavy session again, led on the most-active board by Nvidia's 382.1 million shares at 1.48 times its recent average.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

12 — AFTER-HOURS EARNINGS

After the close today — Dell Technologies reported its fiscal third quarter (release after 16:00 ET): record revenue of $54.94 billion, up 103% from the prior-year period, non-GAAP earnings of $9.45 a share against about $6.59 expected (LSEG) and GAAP earnings of $8.82 a share (the company's release via Business Wire). The infrastructure solutions group nearly tripled to $41.97 billion, Dell raised its fiscal 2027 outlook to revenue of $202.0 billion and non-GAAP earnings of $29.68 a share, and the shares last traded about 4% higher in extended trade, against a $295.28 cash close that was itself down 11.83% on the session. Workday beat — earnings of $2.82 a share against $2.74 expected on revenue of $2.71 billion — and increased the subscription revenue it expects for the year, and fell about 7% in extended trade anyway (last $166.05 at 18:20 ET in this edition's after-hours pull). Autodesk beat — $3.20 a share against $3.07 expected on revenue of $2.16 billion — increased its full-year targets, and fell about 5% (last $243.50 at 17:25 ET). HP Inc. (HPQ) beat — $0.83 a share against $0.75 expected on revenue of $16.00 billion — raised its dividend, and was roughly flat in extended trade (last $27.99 at 18:21 ET). Nutanix beat — $0.73 a share against $0.61 expected on revenue of $772.4 million — announced a chief-executive succession, and fell about 9% (last $49.95 at 18:11 ET). Ambarella missed — revenue of $115.2 million against $119.4 million expected, adjusted earnings of $0.28 against $0.31 — and guided its fourth quarter to $70 million to $75 million of revenue against about $112 million expected (Seeking Alpha): the shares, down 19.96% in the regular session, fell about 38% further in extended trade (last $27.48 at 18:21 ET). Medtronic's morning print completes the day's earnings record: non-GAAP earnings of $1.34 a share against a $1.33 consensus, on revenue of $9.36 billion against $9.48 billion expected, with full-year guidance reiterated — the shares fell 4.56% (the company's release via PR Newswire).

13 — SETUP FOR TOMORROW

SETUP FOR TOMORROW — Wednesday, November 25: the week's data day, all of it at once. The core PCE price index for October prints at 08:30 ET — the Federal Reserve's preferred gauge, with the morning's filed calendar carrying +0.3% on the month and +3.2% on the year — alongside the second estimate of third-quarter GDP (+3.4% annualised expected), durable goods orders (+0.4%), personal income (+0.4%) and spending (+0.4%), and initial jobless claims (200K expected). New-home sales print at 10:00 ET and the Federal Reserve's Beige Book at 14:00 ET (Helious calendar, as filed in this morning's research). Deere reports before the open. Markets are closed Thursday for Thanksgiving and close Friday at 13:00 ET, so Wednesday's prints carry two sessions of pricing. Tuesday's graded lines carry into it: the S&P 500 closed at 7,201.09, above the 7,138.93 low it printed through Monday's line, and its next cash grade is a hold of that low on a closing basis or a recovery through Monday's 7,237.17 close. The December Fed meeting sits on December 8-9 (Federal Reserve).

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

THE FINAL WORD

Two sessions, two one-way tapes, and the second one is the more informative. Monday proved the selling had been positioning: one sentence from a boardroom unwound seven sessions of it. Tuesday proved the buying had been positioning too — the same complex that rose 14% as an index on Monday fell 7.88% on Tuesday, on a day whose only new chip fact was one company's light guide. But Tuesday added something Monday did not have: a control group. While the leaders handed back, nine of eleven sectors rose, the small caps rose, the Dow closed back above 50,000, and the Conference Board's survey — taken during the selloff itself — printed the most confident consumer since January 2025. A market in liquidation does not rotate into staples, health care and discount retailers on its down days. A market repricing one crowded trade does exactly that. The S&P 500 has now fallen in eight of the last nine sessions, and the character of the falling has changed underneath the count: Friday was everything at once, Tuesday was one complex at a time.

The evening graded the morning's question in company ink. The morning asked whether the AI order books were real enough to hold the bid into Dell's print; Dell answered after the close with revenue up 103%, an infrastructure group nearly tripled, and a raised year — and its shares rose about 4% in extended trade after falling 11.83% in the session that doubted them. Hewlett Packard Enterprise on Monday and Dell on Tuesday have now printed the same verdict two evenings running: the demand is not the problem. What the tape keeps repricing is not the order book but the multiple it will pay for it, and the guidance line it will forgive — Analog Devices beat its quarter by 16 cents on earnings per share and lost 17.37% for guiding the next one six cents light. In a market paying for certainty, a beat is the entry fee, not the prize. The day's graded record split the way the tape did — the three futures stances confirmed inside their swings, the question and both authored statements contradicted — and November now stands at 33 confirmed, 37 contradicted and 4 unresolved across 14 graded sessions.

What remains open is the question the month has carried since November 10, and Tuesday narrowed it without settling it: does the give-back become a full hand-back — or does Monday's rally stand into the December meeting? The evidence for the rally standing is the rotation, the confidence print and two evenings of server demand. The evidence for a full hand-back is the index's own line: the S&P 500 traded through Monday's low on Tuesday and needed the close to recover it, and a low that has been visited once is a low the market knows the way to. Wednesday decides the next leg of it, with the only data this week the December meeting actually prices — core PCE at 08:30 ET, the second GDP estimate beside it, the Beige Book in the afternoon — landing in a shortened week with a holiday on Thursday and a half session on Friday. The index's grade stays mechanical: hold 7,138.93 on a closing basis and the rally has a floor with a crack in it; lose it on a close, and Monday becomes the month's second head-fake. The first session that refuses to reverse — in either direction — is still the first piece of evidence that the sequence is ending, and it still has not printed.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

14 — WHAT REMAINS UNRESOLVED

1. Does the give-back become a full hand-back — or does Monday's rally stand into the December meeting?

INSIDE THE PRO EDITION — charts, key levels, and fundamentals on every Engine List name, plus the Company Research Comparison names we keep an eye on. PRO DEGENERATE, $7.99/month.

New to these terms? Learn the market, plain English.

15 — LEAPS

PRO-DEGENERATE ONLY

Set in Noto Serif and Inter · Charts rendered in-house · © 2026 The Degenerates Journal

— 30 —

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.
© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.

Education builds conviction

Everything the Journal makes — the free editions, the Pro shelf, the podcast, and the company we keep — gathered on one page.

THE PRO SHELF · CALCULATEDDEGENS.COM

Where Pro lives: the Pro shelf

The Pro shelf is the members' shelf on calculateddegens.com — the home of Pro Degenerate at $7.99 a month. One shelf, four parts:

LATEST EDITION	the current Pro edition, complete
THE BOARD	the live board of record (Pro)
THE LIBRARY	past Pro editions, kept on the shelf
SCORECARDS	the graded record of the Journal's calls

MEMBERSHIP — THE TWO TIERS, EXPLAINED

PRO DEGENERATE

$7.99 / month · no free trial

– The full Pro editions — every weekday morning and the Sunday Pro edition

– A full page for every name: charts, levels and the complete read

– Fundy's Pick with the full valuation case

– Full board scores (Pro)

– Delivered on the Pro shelf — latest edition, the board, the library, scorecards

TOP TIER

ULTIMATE DEGEN

$14.99 / month

– Everything in PRO DEGENERATE

– The Discord community — Discord is an Ultimate Degen benefit, not part of Pro

– Every edition, complete, as it publishes

ADVERTISEMENT

Sponsored by FlowState's Trade Desk

The GEX LEVELS linked from this journal's Lens plates come from FlowState's Trade Desk — the gamma exposure levels behind the names and the index, published by FlowStateOfMind at flowstateofmind.io.

THE PODCAST

The Degenerates Journal podcast — the Journal in audio: the editions and the deep dives, on Spotify.

THE FREE JOURNAL

The weekday Basic edition is free, every morning at 05:00 ET — and the Sunday Basic is free every week. No membership needed.

The Degenerates Journal is published for research and education purposes only — not financial advice.

May contain typos. Prices may be delayed depending on when the data was collected.

© 2026 The Degenerates Journal. All rights reserved.